Tuesday, October 10; 1:00 - 3:00 p.m. - "The Life and Work of Emily Griffith" presented by Brian Trembath, Special Collections Librarian, Western History and Genealogy at the Denver Public Library

Emily Griffith was an innovative educator whose teaching career began in a one-room sod schoolhouse in Nebraska. Seeking better opportunities, she came to Denver in 1894 with her family. Here she developed her dream of providing free universal education to adults. The "Opportunity School" opened in 1916. A success from the beginning, Emily ran the school until her retirement in 1933. Renamed the Emily Griffith Opportunity School in her honor, it continues today as the Emily Griffith Technical College. Join us for a look at her career and the lasting contributions she made to education in Colorado.
